

Hope and thankfulness at St John's

St John's has been serving the community as the 'hub' school for our trust's key worker children. This is both a pleasure and an honour, not least because of the wonderful collaborative working environment that has bloomed with our staff and pupils all coming together from the three trust schools. Last week, inspired by our wonderful NHS, the children on site made a selection of beautiful rainbows to share their thanks. This was all the more poignant knowing that the children involved are from key worker families on the front line of this crisis.

Over the Easter holidays, our children took part in a joint 'challenge' with New Town Primary School. A new task was posted every day via our Facebook page, as well as a reflection on Easter Sunday. Well done everyone who took part, we have some great entries to share with you.

This is Alfie the Cat-Robot who has been shopping for his inventor during lockdown!

These Easter bunnies are made with old socks – how clever!

